The Kraken Skool of Finance pokes buried histories with embodied artistic actions. KSF is a card game. A performance. A collective process. A conversation. KSF does street rituals across temporalities, vibrating cities through temporary memorials. KSF is entangled economies disturbed with humour and care. KSF might be a tool for living or a waste of time.

The Kraken Skool of Finance is a small international art collective of diverse practices, drawn together by the Atlantic Ocean and its tender, performative relations.

What is most urgent to you in your research right now?

Listening to each other while reimagining artistic intimacies and material relations in the spirit of anti-colonial work. Forming a network of support and critical inspiration which can extend across borders. Playfully, critically unfolding soft economies of performing, worldmaking, and collective dreaming. Asking, what creates consistency?
